

LUNA DECIDES TO GET UP AND HEADS OVER TO HER FRIEND BY THE MAKESHIFT BAR THAT HER PEOPLE HAVE PUT UP ON THE BEACH.

Auriella: Hey, Luna come over here, come and sit at the bar and share a drink with me. Here drink this.

Luna: Auriella.

Auriella: Luna. Don't fret. I'm sure we'll find something tomorrow. I have a feeling.

Luna: A feeling? What feeling?

Auriella: I just have a feeling. Didn't have a feeling last time this happened. Look these disturbances rarely happen, and I know each time we've gone back home empty handed, but this time might be different This time it might actually be them, it might be your brother.

Luna: Ok, alright. Let's just hope.

Auriella: You need another drink.

Luna: No.

Auriella: Yes, as your friend and advisor, I say that you need a drink, and we're not like those humans. We can't get drunk as easily as them. (PAUSE) Hey, bartender, give me two of your strongest Elderberry Ale.

Bartender: Two Elderberry Ale coming right up.

THE BARTENDER THEN GOES TO MAKE THE DRINKS. THE SOUND OF GLASSES GENTLY HITTING THE BAR AND THE SOUND OF THE ELDERBERRY ALE CAN BE HEARD BEING POURED INTO THE GLASSES.

THE BARTENDER THEN PASSES THE DRINKS TO LUNA AND AURIELLA.

Bartender: Here you go, two Elderberry Ale.

Luna & Auriella: Thank you.

Auriella: Cheers!

Luna: Cheers!
